Wine Glossary

Organic Wine

At its simplest, organic wines are exactly what they sound like – wines produced with organically-grown grapes, free from herbicides, pesticides, and other artificial chemical agents. To control for weeds and bugs, growers utilise cover crops to attract benign bugs known to repel the nasties or have livestock like sheep graze between the rows to reduce weeds. The idea is that the vineyard becomes a self-regulating ecosystem.
It does not mean that these wines are free from sulphur or other additives, however – many of which are also organic – but they are often present in lesser quantities.

Biodynamic Wine

Not to be confused with organic wine, biodynamic wine is an approach to winemaking that takes inspiration from the work of late 19th-century spiritual thinker Rudolf Steiner. Like organic wines, growers and winemakers refrain from pesticides and chemical fertilisers, and consider the vineyard as an integrated and holistic system.
One key distinction from organic wines however is the use of biodynamic soil 'supplements' and astrologically informed planting, pruning, and harvesting schedules. From chamomile and yarrow formulations to cow horns loaded with manure, buried and then dug up again according to specific lunar timings, it's a blend of solid scientific thinking and inspired mysticism – with the resulting wines gaining increasing recognition for their quality and varietal expressiveness.
Think of it as a supercharged version of organic farming, which is finding more and more fans and proponents of its distinctive approach.

Preservative-Free Wine

As mentioned above, just because you are buying an organic wine does not mean it will be preservative-free. For that, you will need to seek out a preservative-free wine – often referred to as a wine created through 'minimal intervention'.
The most common preservative used in wine is sulphur dioxide (SO2). Often, you will see it listed on the label as 'preservative 220', or even 'antioxidant 220'.
It is an entirely natural by-product of winemaking, and not necessarily a bad thing at all. It is typically produced by yeast during the fermentation process – and happens to act as protection against bacteria and other nasties, while helping neutralise the effects of oxygen exposure during the winemaking process.
Sulphites are common as preservative agents also – hence the 'may contain sulphites' notice you will see on many bottles. But the better the grapes are handled in the vineyard and the better the quality of the fruit, the less need there is to add any such preservatives. And, despite the common misconception, sulphites are not really to blame for your wine headache – a more likely cause is the phenolics (tannins), the alcohol content, or even the wine's natural acidity.

Vegan Wine

A lot of people may wonder, how is my wine not vegan already? It is a fair question, as wine is essentially fermented grape juice where yeasts facilitate the conversion of the fruit's natural sugars into alcohol… isn't it? Well, yes… but that's only part of the typical winemaking process. Where things get un-vegan is in the fining process, which is meant to clear up the 'haze' created by the proteins, tannins, and tartrate during the creation of a wine. To speed the settlement of this haze, winemakers generally use fining agents such as isinglass (fish protein), gelatin (animal protein), catein (a milk-derived protein), and egg whites (albumin) to act as coagulants, binding the elements that make up the haze, and making them easier to remove from the final wine.
Happily, for vegans, several wines are appearing today that use alternative fining agents like activated charcoal, or bentonite – a clay-based agent. More and more winemakers are also leaving their wines to 'self-fine' or stabilise without the use of any such protein agents.
That means that if you are a vegan wine lover, you'll find more options out there to satisfy that love than ever.
